BUFFALO, N. Y., Mar. 20.—"Mr. Marchand dominated me. I always felt his influence when he was near. He made love to me and I could not resist."

Slim, dark-eyed Lila Jimerson, the Cuyuga Indian maid on trial for the hammer murder of Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, wife of Henri Marchand, noted artist and sculptor, made these assertions today in an exclusive interview in Erie County Jail shortly before she went to the court room here to listen apathetically to attorneys resume the tedious task of selecting the jury. Two jurors had been accepted when court re-convened this morning.

She emphatically denied she was the instigator of the slaying of the artist's wife.

The actual killing was done by Mrs. Nancy Bowen, a sixty-six year old Indian woman, who is also under indictment for the murder. "Ma" Bowen admits she slew Mrs. Marchand because of her belief in witchcraft, alleging she was inspired to commit the act because of outlandish messages translated by Miss Jimerson.

"Are you in love with Mrs. Marchand?" the writer asked.

She laughed, rather discordantly, it seemed. Then, after a pause, she said: "In love with him? Well, no—not really in love. I find it hard to explain. It was like this: When he wasn't around I didn't care for him but when he was near he dominated me—and, well, I met him half way."

Marchand, an artist of international distinction, is now in jail, held as a material witness while the authorities continue their investigation of mysterious aspects of the strange case. He was arrested when letters he had written to Lila, revealing their intimacy, were brought to light.

Lila told this correspondent of the Pagan surroundings in which she lived in that part of the Cattaraugus Indian reservation set aside by tradition for those of the Cayuga, Seneca and Onondaga tribes who have not accepted Christianity, and of how the white man came into her life.

She had posed for him. He was famous and she was flattered.

"Did anything ever come up between you and Mr. Marchand that made you want to get rid of Mrs. Marchand?" she was asked.

"No, positively no," she replied with emphasis.

Lila said Mr. Marchand was "the only man in her life." Although she is thirty-five years old she never had a boy friend, even among the Indians. She could not remember exactly how many letters Marchand had written to her. She thought for a moment and said: "Probably seven or eight."

"Were they love letters?" she was asked.

"Oh, yes," she replied, a quick smile lighting up her chocolate brown eyes. "He told me he loved me. He wrote one letter from Bermuda on May 4th of last year, saying as I recall the words: 'If you are as glad to see me as I am to see you it will be a real meeting.'"

Asked point blank if she had instigated the murder of Mrs. Marchand by means of witchcraft suggestions to "Ma" Bowen, Miss Jimerson declared: "No, absolutely no."

She admitted she and Mrs. Bowen had operated a ouija board together but said she did so "only for fun and not because I believed in spirit messages."

"Mrs. Bowen made a business of it," Lila went on. "She had to ask the ouija board about almost everything she wanted to do. If she wanted to go

A CREDIT TO THE SCHOOL

By "The Stroller"

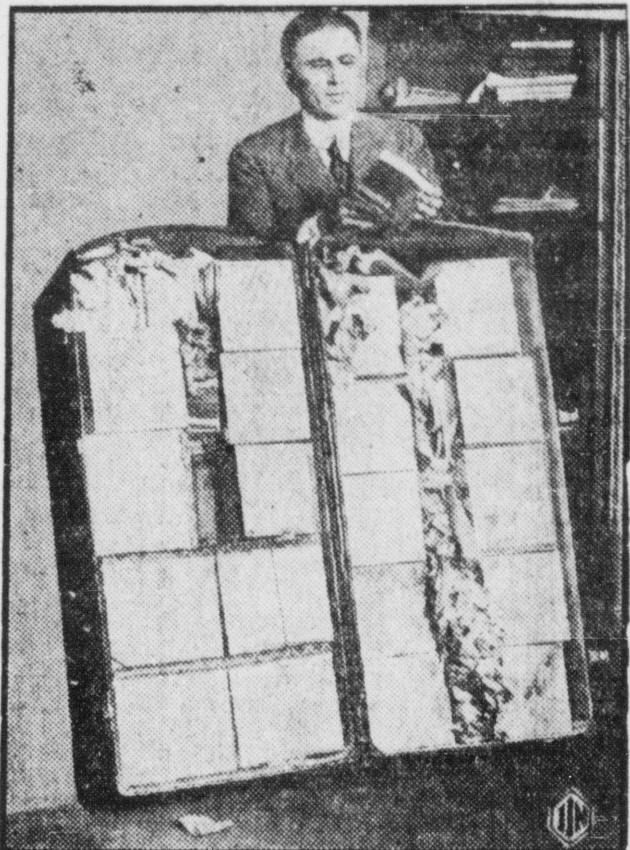

That fine group of musicians composing the Bensalem Township School Band certainly made a most excellent impression at the school dedication last Friday night.

The group of girls and boys all neatly costumed in blue and white demonstrated that they know how to play their respective instruments and the time was perfect.

I have heard more than one express very favorable comment about the band, glee and choral clubs and the various choruses which participated in the program.

COLORED SCOUT SHOWS RESULTS OF TRAINING

Assists Bristol Physician With Work But Refuses Any Compensation

PRAISED FOR ACTION

Dr. Frank Lehman, a prominent physician in Bristol, has been greatly inspired by the effectiveness of scouting in the Bristol colored troop from that unit as he was working at his home recently.

As Dr. Lehman was concerning himself with a household chore a colored boy approached him and offered his assistance. Together they worked until the job met their satisfaction and then Dr. Lehman thanking the boy offered him a coin. The boy declined the offer stating that he was a Scout and that a Scout is helpful and does not accept money for a "good turn." The boy did not identify himself but as quickly as he appeared where help was needed he left when the work was done.

Scouts the country wide look up to an unknown English Boy Scout who by offering his services to W. D. Boyce, a Chicago business man, as he was trying to locate an address in a country.

BROTHER FILES CAVEAT AGAINST WILL PROBATE

Wm. R. Mercer, Doylestown,
Protests Against Codicil
In Brother's Will

PUBLIC BEQUESTS O. K.

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 20.—In the office of the Bucks County Register of Wills here a caveat was filed against the probate of any will in the estate of Dr. Henry C. Mercer, internationally famous scientist who died at his home here ten days ago leaving an estate estimated at close to $1,000,000, a large portion of which was bequeathed for the benefit of the public.

The caveat was filed by William R. Mercer, of this borough, wealthy brother of the deceased scientist, who resides at "Aldie," one of the largest estates in Bucks county located less than a mile from the late scientist's home, Fonthill, that was bequeathed as a museum.

Thomas Ross, attorney for William R. Mercer, stated tonight that the caveat is directed principally against a codicil in the Mercer will which changes a bequest made in the original will leaving the residue of the estate to William R. Mercer, and gives it to the Bucks County Historical Society.

Counsel for the caveator announced that the caveat will in no way affect any of the public bequests made by Dr. Mercer, but that in the opinion of the caveator, since the Bucks County Historical Society was endowed by Dr. Mercer for $130,000 and has money besides, that "the society has plenty."

It is also contended by the caveator that when Dr. Mercer wrote the codicil in which the residue of the estate was taken away from his brother, that he was in extremely poor health and in a very much disturbed state of mind. The residue of the estate, it is estimated, will amount to close to $300,000.

LOMBARDO RELEASED UNDER $1,000 BAIL

Bristol Township Man Denies Knowledge of Existence of Still

MASH BINS UNDER HOME

Denying all knowledge of the existence of a still upon his premises a Bristol Township man has been released under $1,000 bail charged with illegal manufacture and illegal possession of liquor.

Frank Lombardo, whose place was raided Saturday, but who was not at home when the State Police from Doylestown paid their unexpected visit, walked into the Bristol police station and told Chief Jones that he wanted to give himself up. Lombardo was taken to Doylestown and turned over to the State Police who at once lodged the above charges against him. He was given a hearing before Justice Hobensack and held in jail.

The cellar extending under a portion of the house in which Lombardo resided was used as part of a huge mash tank and in a shed 30 feet away there was a steam boiler and pump in operation.

Lombardo sticks to his story that he had no knowledge of the existence of the still.

It is reported that the alcohol distilled at the plant was the source of supply for several Bristol bootleggers.

When the State Police visited the Lombardo place two weeks ago the plant was dismantled but when they arrived on the scene Saturday the plant was ready to operate and the boiler "fired up."

The entire plant is valued at close to $5,000 and there was a lot of raw material on hand such as 50 bags of coke, 25 empty five-gallon cans. One part of the still was 25 feet high. There were four vats in the cellar of the house 14 feet long, 22 feet wide and eight feet deep. All were filled with mash. Seven gallons of alcohol were seized. There is said to have been evidence of a shipment having been made either Friday night or early Saturday morning.

The entire plant was dismantled and taken to Doylestown.

Lombardo was not at home when the State Police called.

BOARD TRYING TO OUST WM. L. ELY AS SUPERVISOR

First Set of Depositions Are Taken Before Notary J.
Kirk Leatherman

HEARING ON APRIL 1ST

Ely Will Then Be Permitted
To Present His Side
Of the Case

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 20.—The first set of depositions were taken yesterday before Notary J. Kirk Leatherman in the attorney's room of the county court house in the proceedings brought by the board of road supervisors of Solebury township to have William L. Ely, a member of the board, ousted because of alleged neglect to perform his duties.

There will be another hearing in the case on April 10, at 10 a. m., when Supervisor Ely will be permitted to present his side of the case.

Witnesses were called yesterday by the petitioners against Ely, including R. Moore Price, secretary and treasurer of the board who testified that "Ely was his closest friend for a long time" but that Ely had neglected certain duties and was holding up the proper execution of the business of the board.

Price denied that he and Colonel VanOrden, a citizen of Solebury township "worked together" to oust Ely. In answer to another question, Price admitted that Colonel VanOrden did attend many of the meetings although not a member of the board, and that he did make numerous good suggestions to the board members. Since January Ely has not attended a meeting of the board.

When questioned as to the price paid by Ely as road master for having stone hauled, Price stated that no account was available right now to give the actual amount paid out but that it was excessive, he believed.

Under cross-examination by Ely's attorney, Price denied that he has assumed duties as secretary and treasurer of the board that he had no right to assume.

Harry Vasey, chairman of the board of supervisors, testified there have been no meetings of the board since January in spite of the fact that the board has business to transact and road workmen to pay. This is because there has not been a quorum at the meeting. Ely refused to attend and another supervisor has been in Florida.

Vasey denied that there has been any confusion at the meetings since he became a member in December last.

It was also stated by Ely that the board had received bids for hauling stone varying from 50 cents to $1.00 a ton.

Under cross-examination Ely again stated he thought that perfect harmony had existed in the board. He admitted having something to do with obtaining a warrant for the arrest of William L. Ely.

James S. Grimes, of New Hope, testified that Ely never gave him a chance to bid on hauling stone but that he would have been glad to haul at 50 cents a ton.

It was testified that 65 cents a ton was paid to haul the stone in the township while Ely was road master. This was paid to John Major, of Solebury, who it is alleged paid other men 50 cents to do the actual work.

Herbert Ireland testified that he had received 50 cents a ton from Major to haul stone.

Nurse Wins Husband After Four-Day Battle

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Mar. 20.—Miss Iga E. Lehman, twenty-one, former student nurse at Washington County Hospital here, today was Mrs. Carl R. Rogers, bride of a hospital patient, whom she wed in the latter's room at the institution, and won a four-day battle with hospital authorities.

Since last Saturday the edict of Milton M. Bergey, the hospital superintendent, forbidding the marriage there, had prevented the former nurse from even entering the institution.

Yesterday Mr. Bergey experienced a change of heart and said that the couple could be married in Rogers' room any time they desired. So the Rev. J. M. Gillum performed the ceremony a short time later.

The bride was discharged from the hospital recently for alleged "unprofessional conduct."

Mr. Bergey is a former resident of Edgely.

PENSIONS FOR OLD

While medical science, public health services and other factors have been lengthening the individual's "expectation of life" the increased use of machinery and high pressure business have shortened the productive years of millions of factory workers. The worker is crushed between these two millstones unless he belongs to the provident few who save enough during that active years to retire independent.

At the same time living standards and the cost of living have so skyrocketed that fewer homes having several dependents can subsist on the income of a single breadwinner. Dependent parents have become a real burden to the man of small income.

So agitation for old age pension increases in vehemence and the plan gains new supporters from the growing ranks of those who would now be benefitting if pensioning of the indigent aged were already a fact.

Old age pensions—in America? Just to hear the words makes many see red. Others it makes frown thoughtfully, shake their heads doubtfully, and end by remarking that socialism and paternalism are utterly un-American.

Perhaps the opponent nearest right is he who foresees the placing of a handicap on diligence and thrift by pensioning the old. If there are now two million persons over 65 and dependent, there would be many times that many after a few years of old age pensioning, for it, like all dotes, would encourage improvidence and shiftlessness.

The old age pension is an experiment that should not be rushed into without long deliberation and thorough study.

DAYS OF YOUTH

"We are only young once," you often hear some person remark as an excuse for "hitting the pace."

True, we can be young but once, and the pleasure of youth must be crowded into that space of time.

But how long are we young? Some men are old at 40, while others are still young at 60. It depends upon the pace they hit and the manner in which they hit it.

We can crowd a lot of work and pleasure into youth if we keep our hearts and our minds and our bodies clean, or we can reduce the amount of both and shorten our youth by resorting to reckless dissipation.

Your youth is your own. It will be prolonged or curtailed by your own acts.

When the husband begins to find fault the wife always suspects that he has found another woman.

When a man is undone he's done usually. The English language is a wonderful invention.

"GENERAL CRACK"

BY GEORGE PREEDY

Copyright 1928 by Dodd Mead & Co., Inc.
The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore is based on this novel.

SYNOPSIS

General Crack, as head of the imperial army of King Leopold, has succeeded in conquering the enemy, and lays his plans at Brussels, for the coronation of Leopold as Emperor. The price of his siding with Leopold was the hand of Princess Eleanora, whom Leopold had destined for his own wife. Gabor, a knight dismissed from Crack's service, forges a letter from Eleanora to Leopold, protesting love, and schemes to get his revenge on Crack by having Leopold and Eleanora enmeshed in a liaison. Leopold is tempted.

"In her waiting—in her expectations?" smiled Gabor, with a slight shrug. "What more can I tell Your Majesty? She wrote to you, and did not, I think, get an answer."

"It was impossible," cried Leopold, agonized, "for me to send an answer; almost impossible for me to know how to pen an answer!"

And then he caught himself up, feeling how desperately he was committing himself before this mean man, this spy, this scoundrel, this backstairs go-between. And yet he had no other possible help, no other possible ally.

"It may be," said Gabor, in his most insinuating voice, flickering his ashy eyes, "that when her husband returns the lady will recover. He does not seem to find it so difficult to capture ladies' hearts."

He would see her, come what may!

"What do you mean by that?" cried Leopold. "What have you seen?"

"I was present at the Opera to-night," smiled Gabor, "and I observed—how easily and lightly ladies will lose their hearts to a hero of the moment, Prince Christian has a showy presence, and those arrogant manners which impress female hearts. I think there were two or three there to-night to whom he would not have to sue long in vain."

"If Your Majesty," continued the Transylvanian, "were to write a letter, I think that I could see that it was conveyed to Ottenheim."

"I'll write no letter!" cried Leopold, wildly. "I have nothing more to say. You may, Sir, begone, and endeavour, for your own good, to forget all this affair."

"There is, Sir," he said, "yet one other alternative: if you will not write, you might yourself go to Ottenheim."

Leopold looked at him, as if fascinated, across his shoulder. "Go yourself to Ottenheim!" he repeated. "You talk moonshine, madman!"

Gabor gave his jerking shrug. "Christian," he remarked, "is occupied with the war; Your Majesty might gain a few days' absence from headquarters. Surely you are not yet such a—"

"Such a slave to this man, you would say?" added Leopold, bitterly. "Say what you like, for I cannot take offense from you, Ferdinand Gabor: I am come so low as that! But never dream," he added, "that I shall go to Ottenheim. Do not even think of such a thing; do not even let such words pass your lips again."

Gabor bowed ironically. "Then I have nothing more to say, Sir," he remarked, "and I fear, Sir, that I can be of no use to Your Majesty. As for my news which you ask—it merely comes to this: again I tell you that the girl moans and pines, and maybe, so the doctors say, before the spring she'll die."

These little creatures, Sir, have a very tight hold on life; and often, in losing their happiness, they lose their all."

Leopold bowed his head upon the marble mantelpiece, but did not answer. One by one, the lingering coals dropped into blackness on the hearth, and the harsh cold filled the large, pompous room.

"Go," said Leopold, without turning.

will take up their residence in the Manor Apartments, where Dr. Lefkowitz recently opened a dental office. The bride is a graduate of Trenton High School and Columbia University, while the groom attended New York University and Philadelphia Dental College, Temple University.

WET CHICAGO

A pet argument of the wets, wild and unfounded though it is, denounces Prohibition because under it they declare more liquor is being consumed than in saloon days. Prof. Irving Fisher, Yale economist, declares that less liquor now is consumed in the whole nation than Chicago's present population of 3,000,000 would be drinking without Prohibition. Twenty years ago, statistics show, Chicagoans were getting away with 63 gallons of beer and 4 gallons of spirits for every man, woman and child in the city. Applying the same ratio of consumption to the present 3,000,000 in that city would require 236,250,000 gallons of beer and 12,000,000 gallons of spirits annually. They used to know how to "lap up the suds" in those days.—Capper's Weekly.—(Adv.)

Cuyuga Indian Says Marchand Dominated Her

anywhere she consulted the ouija board. She told fortunes, too. She was superstitious. I myself did not believe in witchcraft."

Asked if she ever harbored ill will toward the slain artist's wife, Miss Jimerson replied:

"No, never! I never had cause to."

"I became well acquainted with Mr. Marchand in 1926," Lila related. "He came to the reservation and stayed over Saturdays and Sundays."

"I have read that I posed for him many times. That is not true. I posed for him only once. He was making a bust model. That was in September, 1928."

Her voice softened as she told of romantic days spent with Marchand on the reservation. For years she had been a hard working girl, toiling long hours on the farm with her father, and knew nothing of the outside world and its amusements.

"I was ill of tuberculosis," Lila said. "I used to go to the doctor seven miles away for treatment. Mr. Marchand often took me by automobile to the doctor's. The first time his wife was along. And she accompanied us on several trips later."

"Then he and I began going on this trip alone. We became friendly. He would park his car in the woods at sundown and we would sit contentedly in the back seat."

"I do not feel guilty in any sense in connection with Mrs. Marchand's death," she concluded. "I am not to blame for all this trouble. I try to be contented as possible in jail but I am not used to such confinement. I did not sleep well last night. My father and aunt have visited me and so has Rev. Benjamin S. Ferrell, pastor of the Central Church of Christ of Buffalo, and this has made me feel better. As for the trial itself, it is no ordeal because I feel that I am innocent."

SPORT NEWS

PREDICTS ANOTHER PAY OFF SEASON FOR CUBS

By Jimmy Corcoran
L. N. S. Sports Writer
AVALON, Calif., Mar. 20.—Barring cracked ulna bones, depletion of the Wrigley millions or billions and high winds from the East we can't figure anything but another pay-off of the Chicago Cubs this season.

You can reason it out for yourself, if you wish, beside your favorite radiator.

The 1929 champs of the National League and champs of the World Series should finish in Notch No. 1 for the following obvious reasons:

1. The return to normalcy of Gabby Martini's fit (nee arm).
2. Better reserve pitching.
3. More power at third base where Les Bell, formerly of the Braves, has supplanted Norman McMillan.
4. Manager Joe McCarthy says so.

We'll back that hand face to face with anything that the seven other entries can produce. The Cubs of last season were strong enough to strangle in to the World Series without straining their fiddle strings. They'll be a better ball club for the impending sweepstakes. Paste that in your spring derby.

Let the requiem about Hartnett's arm cease. He's right back now where he left off in 1928. He has been unclogging those famous rifle pegs hither and yon in spring skirmishes and unless he suffers some kind of a relapse he'll be behind the swingers when the Cubs open the season.

There isn't any reason why Charley Root, Guy Bush and Pat Malone shouldn't be just as baffling with their services as they were last season. Add to this the threat that Fred Shold pick off his share of the winners. Blake had his ailments in the last flag battle but he's a fit subject right now. Hal Carlson still waves and refused to be checked out of the picture.

Of the youngsters who reported at Avalon for pitching survey McCarthy likes Lynn Nelson who came up from Kansas City, Mal Moss from Louisville, Al Shealy from St. Paul, George Bell from Mobile and Lonie Warneke from Shreveport.

Bud Teachout, a purchase from Indianapolis, got away to a staggering start in the early spring games but since Joe must have a southpaw, and that's what Teachout happens to be, he is giving him plenty of time to get his bearings. Moss, another fork-slicer, is McCarthy's other bet for a working left hander.

Bob Osborne and Ed Lautenbacher who have bounced back from the Reading Club will be given serious consideration. Bill McAfee of Michigan, has equipment but he's at least a year away from the big league. Hank Grampp still remains the glutton as a batting practice pitcher but has hopes of regular employment this season.

Danny Taylor, the chappy who topped the International League in clotting last season with a mark of .367 is still nibbling on the rim of murderers' row but while Stephenson, Wilson and Caylor continue to leather that baseball there doesn't seem much chance for Dan to break in. He will be kept, however, Cliff Heathcote will continue to play a pinch outfield role. Any infield that has Grimm, Hornsby, English and Bell clicking, has to be rated with the best. The latter, with the influence of his old pal, Roger Hornsby, should move high into the 300 class.

The only green pea who aspires for an infield berth is first baseman, Herman Jones, late of the Greenville, N. C. Club. Herman is only 29 and in his early workouts has convinced the folks that he won't be a Herman Jones all his life. The kid has something. Beck and Blair will fill the utility roles.

"I can say without kidding myself or the baseball public," states Joe McCarthy, "that we should repeat in 1930. Our club is stronger. We'll have better reserve pitching. Last year we had to count on Ovgens and Nehf. Now I'm confident that some of the young buds will be of great help."

REV. HOLDEN TO SPEAK

The special guest speaker at the Lenten service in St. Paul's Episcopal Chapel, Edgely, tomorrow evening will be the Rev. Seaver Holden, rector of the Church of the Incarnation, Morrisville, and for some years rector of St. Paul's Church, Bristol. Service will start at eight, and last for one hour. Interesting music and good singing will interest all.

BRISTOL GIRLS GAIN LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP

Bristol high school girls' basketball team was victorious over Bensalem sextet last night, thus winning the championship in the Lower Bucks County Basketball League.

The play-off in the series took place last night on the "gym" floor of Trenton Junior High School No. 4 after Bensalem and Bristol tied for first place last week.

The score in this final game was 36 to 32.

Bristol started off with two field goals and making five points before Bensalem dropped one. Then the Bensalem aggregation got busy and caught up to Bristol, tying the score at 16-16. Just before the end of the first half Bensalem made another goal, the half ending at 18-16.

Both teams scored in the third quarter, and in the fourth when Bristol was leading, 34-23, the team lost both guards on account of too many fouls. This loss somewhat weakened Bristol's defense, but the group came out on top, four points ahead of the Bensalem players.

Rockhill starred for Bristol, totaling 16 field goals and five fouls. McFadden gained three points for Bristol. E. Whitt gave a good game, promising much for next year's varsity team.

The star for Bensalem was Thomas, who made all of the 32 points for her team.

BASEBALL IS POPULAR IN MEXICO—JOHNSON

(Editor's Note: International News Service presents herewith the third of a series of articles by Byron Bancroft (Ban) Johnson, president of the American League from 1900 to 1927, in which he comments on sports and general topics.)

By Ban Johnson
SAN DIEGO, Cal., Mar. 20.—(INS)—Organized sports are rapidly replacing bullfighting as the leading recreation in Mexico.

When I was in Mexico recently, I was amazed to find the general interest that was being manifested in baseball.

About ten years ago, Alvaro Obregon, who was then president of Mexico, had the Mexican congress appropriate $250,000 gold for the encouragement of baseball. Today the average Mexican is as interested in baseball as the average American.

There are many good ball clubs in the southern republic.

The Mexican makes a splendid ball player. He not only is a good fielder but bats well.

In this the Mexican differs from the Japanese. Japanese are good runners and fielders, but they don't bat up to standard.

Many minor leagues in the United States have outstanding Mexican players. I understand the San Antonio club of the Texas league has five Mexican players.

When I was in Mexico City, a special baseball game was arranged for my entertainment. Mexico City played Vera Cruz. More than 10,000 persons attended the game. Many high Mexican officials were present and they had a band of 104 pieces.

Following the game, which was a double header, there was a bull fight.

As an example of the general popularity of baseball in Mexico, on the Sunday before I left there were 33 regular scheduled games in Mexico City alone.

Morris Witkin, of New York, spent the week-end visiting Miss Ida Glazer at her home, corner of Pond and Market streets.

KONJOLA GAVE THIS MAN NEW POWER TO WORK

On Verge of Losing Position; New Medicine Ended All Health Troubles

MR. BENJAMIN RASSER

"Konjola made it possible for me to hold my position," said Mr. Benjamin Rasser, shoe salesman, 2024 North Thirty Second street, Philadelphia. "My work required constant stooping and severe back pains were making this impossible for me. Constipation was a source of constant worry and cathartics were a daily necessity. I tried many medicines and treatments, but nothing helped. I had about made up my mind to stop work entirely.

"A friend, working in the same store, finally persuaded me to try Konjola. I shall always be grateful to him. I was astounded at the relief afforded me by the very first bottle. Within three weeks after I began with Konjola my troubles were over. Constipation had left me and my back pains had gone. I felt better in every way. My appetite improved and I gained in weight and strength. I am in excellent health today, thanks to a good friend and a great medicine."

Konjola is sold in Bristol at Hoffman's Cut Rate store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. (Adv.)
